

Read Psalm 66

Discussion Questions:

How can we cultivate a deeper sense of gratitude and thanksgiving in our daily lives, even during challenging times?

What are some ways we can 'show and tell' God's greatness to others in our communities and workplaces?

How does understanding God's sovereignty in difficult circumstances change our perspective and response to trials?

In what ways might we be 'cherishing sin' in our hearts, and how can we address this to have a more effective prayer life?

How can we develop a prayer life that is more God-centered rather than self-centered?

What does it mean to be 'utterly dependent' on God, and how can we cultivate this attitude in our lives?

How does the concept of God 'refining us like silver' shape our understanding of personal growth and spiritual maturity?

In what ways can we use our personal testimonies of God's work in our lives to encourage others and glorify Him?

How can we ensure that our thanksgiving to God is sincere and not just a superficial or ritualistic practice?

What steps can we take to move from intellectual belief to full surrender and assurance in our relationship with God?
